The first issue would be the class may or may not be accredited and they run the risk of the person who is signed up for the class may not actually be that person; meaning they have someone else take the class for them. During the committee they also discussed the necessity for any videos put on blackboard need to be captioned. While the school is working on a way to find the funds to do so, they are also trying to get teachers to submit requests for this action to take place. It was also reported that there is a blackboard mobile application that initially was for sprint users. Sprint was under the impression they would receive more business for this and since they are not, they are suing blackboard.
