Frequently Asked Questions by LPC Faculty

Will I have Middle College students in my classes? Most likely, yes! On average, MCHS students are enrolled in over 100 LPC courses (over 300 sections!).

Should I ask them to identify themselves? No. Students may choose to not identify themselves, especially early on. Halfway through the semester, students will present you with a brief progress report for a current grade estimate and feedback on attendance and class participation. These progress reports are shared with parents/guardians and reviewed by Middle College.. This is a great opportunity to share any successes or concerns.

What should I expect from Middle College High School students? You should expect exactly what you expect from all LPC students. Do not change your rigorous expectations!

Since the students are technically in high school, should I expect to hear from parents/guardians? No, parents and guardians cannot communicate with you per FERPA.

Can Middle College students join LPC clubs and activities? Yes, in fact, we have numerous students involved in clubs and organizations from Student Government to starting their own Film Club.

When students graduate from high school, how many college units will they have earned? It depends. Students take between 7 and 11 LCP units each semester, so they can earn up to 44 college units, not including summer semesters. In many cases, if students stay at LPC for one year after high school graduation, they should be able to meet transfer requirements. In addition to their LPC courses, our students take three high school classes daily here at LPC - English, Social Studies (US History 11, Civics/Econ 12), and AVID.

What happens after high school graduation? While the majority of our students continue at Las Positas College to complete their transfer, many apply directly to four-year schools, including UCs, CSU, private, and out of state colleges and universities.
