Club Sports Rules and Regulations

A Club Sport is Defined As, a club for students to practice and play sports, a club that will be open for all interested students to join, a club that will receive ICC funds, a club that will adhere to all the rules and regulations of the ICC.

- A Club Sport may not charge mandatory dues. They may ask for donations.
- A Club Sport may not exclude any member from participating in any of the club activities, games, practices or meetings.
- A Club Sport must be open to all interested students. If a coed team is not feasible, a men’s and women’s team should be offered.
- A Club Sport practice does not count as a club meeting.
- Every Club Sport must allow each member to play some game time.
- No intercollegiate team may have a Club Sport team.
- If a Club Sport team competes against an intercollegiate team from another school in their season of sport, the members must meet all CCCAA academic and eligibility requirements.

Failure to adhere to ICC Club Sport rules and regulations may result in consequences including but not limited to deactivation of the Club Sport.
