ABOUT OUR WORKSHOP

In an age where influence is highly regarded, equipping Black students to lead with confidence and integrity is critical. Social movements and equity initiatives are creating more opportunities for diverse leadership in academic, communal, and professional spaces. Therefore, professional development that is both culturally informed and culturally relevant becomes essential in positioning Black student leaders for success in present and future leadership roles.

This summit explores the following areas:

1. Black Identity & Self-confidence
2. Management vs. Leadership
3. Career Legacy & Upward Mobility
